PUNE, FEBRUARY 18

A FOUR month pre-service teacher training certificate programme has been launched by Cambridge University Press & Assessment in association with Vishwakarma University. The four month course is designed for fresh B.Ed graduates, final year B.Ed students, and aspiring educators, and will focus on capacity building and enhancement.

The course will cost Rs 25,000 and will have 3.5 months of teaching and a 15 day internship. The first intake will be of 30 students and admission formalities will be completed in the next two months, said Vishwakarma University authorities. The course will include 40 hours of online teaching and 40 hours of in-person teaching and is catered towards school educators looking to teach in any board across India.

Arun Rajamani, managing director of Cambridge University Press & Assessment, South Asia, said, "The programme is designed to equip educators with tools to nurture enquiry-based learning, critical thinking, and use of emerging technologies like artificial intelligence to support personalised learning."
